

A Circus of Emotions

After many adventures the four brothers and the bunny inventor have landed in a village in the distant Russia.

All the inhabitants of the land were in celebration. Wherever they went, there were animals who danced and sang joyful songs. The five bunnies enchanted by this marvel they wondered where they have ended. Then they stopped a passerby and they have asked what was going on and this little animal has explained to them that in a few days it would have played a great show of Russian circus.

There was also a race and everyone could participate to try to win the prize "Golden Clown".

They decided to visit the small village and were struck by how much love and passion the locals put in the shows that were preparing. There were elephants who tried their numbers balancing on the giant balloons, walruses and seals immersed themselves in the tanks to create games with swimming fast intersections and doing the breathtaking dives, then they saw two bears that were the acrobats and a giraffe who practiced with the trapeze ... it was truly a magical place.

Ginger, seen all that enthusiasm, decided to enter the competition. Pistacchio and Miele were not very convinced of being able to do it instead, the little Mirtillo has embraced the challenge that his sister had proposed.

They decided to make the numbers of magic and to get involve Gianduiotto too, and gave him the role of the Great Wizard, then each one have had its role. Mirtillo was a juggler, Miele would disappear from a box, Pistacchio would feel the thrill of being divided into two and as the last number Ginger would come out of nowhere from inside a magic cylinder.

Days had passed and five bunnies have tried and tried again their numbers until everything did work perfectly.

One morning with the first light of the sun also the wagons of the circus have arrived, all the greatest people of the entire world of the circus were there to see their magic and their numbers, all the villagers were excited and thrilled to be part of that show. After a few hours everything was ready, the tent had been mounting, harnesses and ropes have stretched like violin strings above their heads. All participants of the race were line up to enter the competition and to each one have given the order in which they would perform.

The brothers were in trepidation and the fear of getting something wrong began come forward, then Gianduiotto has said to them: "Working together means winning together as a family of bunnies that shares a common goal can achieve the impossible!"

They began to prepare themselves, while they were rehearsing their number they could hear the applause and shouts of joy that the public reserved to professionals and other participants of the competition.

At one point the monkey who coordinated the revenue called them and drove them to the center of the arena of the circus, at that moment the whole public was silent and it waited to see what number would the proposed the 5 bunnies came from afar. Mirtillo picked up all the courage, he approached the microphone and introduced their magic show.

The first to go on stage was Pistacchio, entered his magic box Gianduiotto with a quick stroke of his sword cut him in half and he showed that the bunny had been divided into two, after a second of silence, the audience exploded with a roar of cheers, came Miele disappearing and reappearing jumping from one box to another. Then was the turn of Mirtillo with chocolate eggs used as balls he started to perform with amazing numbers, looked like a professional juggler. For the last number, Gianduiotto asked the audience to silence because he could do that only with great concentration, opened so all the boxes and cabinets that were in the middle of the stage to show that was not hiding anywhere the 4th bunny.

He said his magic formula but nothing happened, Ginger did not appear in any of the boxes, the audience a bit 'sad he did not understand why the number was not successful. Gianduiotto apologized to the public and then took off the cylinder in his head but, at that time, appeared the rabbit from the hat, the audience between a laugh and the other applauded the little bunnies because they were very talented, between compliments of the audience they left the scene.

Ginger, Miele, Pistacchio and Mirtillo could not believe what had happened, the number has never succeeded so well. They were so happy to have succeeded in something so difficult that not even they were sorry not to have won that race because the greatest victory they had achieved had been to believe in themselves, because if you have fun is not always the most important thing is the win

... the sweet adventures continue on...
The Decosil logo features a stylized orange leaf-like shape to the left of the word "decosil" in a bold, sans-serif font. Below "decosil" is the text "Story Books" in a smaller, cursive font.